

The Range and Limitation of Right of Self-determination

Masaomi TAKANORI

A variety of activities including abortion, suicide, mercy killing, sexual act, gambling, dangerous sports, and so on are thought to be a part of Right of Self-determination as fundamental human rights. This argument stems from the interpretation of Article 13. But Article 13 rather remains general principle of human right or declaratory clauses. By arguing judicial character of right of self-determination and harm principle, this article is designed to examine the limitation of the rights to be restricted by national interest or social interest.
